Since January 2017, Italy offers an ad hoc tax treatment (yearly lump sum payment of 100.000€ on any foreign income and gains and exclusion from Inheritance and Gift Tax on foreign assets) to individuals and families who transfer their tax residence to Italy.

In the two years that followed the introduction of the norm, lawyers and tax advisors have had the occasion to analyze a number of complex and articulated cases, with an ever increasing interaction with central government authorities.

Our round table brings together the experience of an eminent government official, who will explain the approach to the norm (including its future), and professionals, who will discuss the most representative cases they have dealt with so far.

The panel, moderated by Giovanna Lagutaine (Managing Director - Rothschild Private Wealth), will be composed of Stefano Firpo (Director General - Ministry for Economic Development, Chair of the Investor Visa Committee), Giulia Cipollini (Senior Partner - Withers Studio Legale) and Luigi Belluzzo (Managing Partner - Belluzzo International Partners).

In the spirit of an open discussion, please include potential questions you might already have for the panelists in the text of your confirmation.
